AMUSEMENTS.

Many people were unable to find a "slurw" at the performance of "The Taming of the Shrew" at the Criterion Theatre on Saturday night, when the attraction was the largest. When Mr. Oscar Asche and Miss Lily Brayton first opened their brilliant Shakespearean season. The curtain fell to roars of laughter and the scene in which Petruchio, his "echo" dares the audience, loudly cries "I want my Kate." There will be the usual matinee on Wednesday.

There will be a convulsive rehearsal at the Town Hall Saturday afternoon, when Mr. and Mrs. Aesch (Hutton), Miss Bryant (Portia), and the full strength of the company will appear in the noble tragedy. Messrs. Meynell and Gunn announce the opening of the plan for this morning at Kivy's.

On Saturday next the J. C. Williamson management will revive "The Village Priest" in order to bring to the attention of the audience the remains of one of his famous impersonations of a grief-stricken pastor haunted with the knowledge of a murder, wrong, and intrigue. A priest in other respects entirely new has been formed.

PALACE THEATRE.
Frederick Mely's dramatic illustration of human emotion entitled "Married to the Wrong Man" continues to draw crowded audiences at the Palace Theatre, where the house was full on Saturday night before the curtain rose. Mr. George Marlow's company will support the new English tragedian, Mr. Hoggan Armada, on Saturday afternoon in a representation of "The Bells." The plan is at Elvy's.

TIVOLI THEATRE.
The programme at the Tivoli is at present notable for some distinct features. The wonderful performance of Captain Winston's seals is still the principal item, and in addition there is the Salome Dancer of Miss Atherton Carey, and a sensational dancing of the Australian Dancers. These three items stand out in a bill of the usual order, which is a strong one in vaudeville artists. Miss Little Kay is concluding her engagement with Mr. Richards. The Two Belles, Blacks and Granddy, Vaude and Verne, Little Tich of Ausall received on Saturday with unstinted applause. Mr. Irving Sayles made his reappearance. A special turn is announced for the third instant—the three clowns Trappell, lady acrobats and tumblers.

NATIONAL AMPHITHEATRE.

The introduction of new turns and performers is a weekly feature at the National Amphitheatre. On Saturday there was a good act by Delavale and Gilbert, a scene displaying "H.M.S. Australia," the semi-ponents of the audience being aroused by patriotic melodies to the glory of their country upheld by their own cheering and applause. The singing, dancing, and music received with great applause. That popular comedian Denis Carney, respected, and was warmly welcomed with his dancing and fun-making. The Three Musical Millers were also the recipients of much admiration in their weird performances. Mr. Bruce Drayable sang and a new singer came forward in the last of the evening. The musical comedy, "The Girl from Italy" by the Italian troupe, was the most popular. Miss Mabel Smith's clever dancing, and also that of Baby Drury, are notable items in the first part. Mr.

The main attraction at the Lyceum Theatre on Saturday night was the series depicting the landing of Dr. Cook at Copenhagen. Views of the Norwegian whaler which brought him from the polar regions are first shown, and then various scenes in the harbour at Copenhagen. Then follow the landing and official reception and the first scenes of the play.

explorer addressing a vast concourse from the balconies of the Meteorological Institute, Copenhagen. Chief amongst the scenic section was a film setting forth the various phases in the life of the picturesque inhabitants of Holland. The dramatic section was represented by a series of powerful pictures—the St. Roman, a Roman study, being particularly effective. A new series of Sherlock Holmes pictures was also shown, and caught the fancy of the audience. The remainder of the programme was made up of the usual comic and variety pictures. There will be the usual routines of

WEST'S PICTURES.

The latest attraction at the Glaciarium is the up-to-date series of pictures depicting Dr. Cook's expedition to the North Pole. Such views as the forcing of the ship through the ice pack and glimpses of the animals and bad life in that region, together with the many incidents connected with the voyage, were things which have been only read about lately, and the fact that they could be seen in all reality caused a big rush to that place of amusement on

The audience displayed keen interest throughout and the slow pace of the tour was not noted in showing their appreciation. Among the other items on the programme was a series which showed all that could be seen during aviation week at Rheims. The evolutions of Wright, Farman and Bleriot were all depicted, and one startling picture was the view of the city of Rheims from the cockpit of a visit through the flying training institution in Paris appeared very strongly to those charitably disposed in view of the educational benefit which is derived from the views of this modern institution the management.

ment offer an invitation to all houses of assembly on Wednesday. A dramatic play relating how a tyrannical King forced his subjects to rebellion and was eventually killed was well worked out. A film showing the adventures of Sherlock Holmes in unravelling the mystery of "the lady in green" received popularity. The comic plays were good.

THE BLOK.

Variation was the chief factor which contributed to the success of the programme presented at the Blok Picture Palace on Saturday. The audience were shown life-size pictures of the animals of the Museum of Park zoological fiction. Zeppelin's first film, Die Luftschiffahrt, was a series of lectures, whilst the Kaiser was prominent among the spectators. The dramatic adventures incidental to the life of a jester's daughter supplied a splendid plot, and aroused keen interest. The practical jokes practised on numerous passers-by by a professor's page-boy, who steals his master's hat, and the usual comedy turns, and any other films equally as good were shown. Such a novel form of entertainment as the electro-telephone added greatly to the pleasure of the event.

ROYAL STANDARD THEATRE.
Several newcomers appeared at the Royal Standard Theatre, on Saturday night, when the programme submitted found favour. Mr. Harry Clay's item was delivered in quite his old-time manner, and went well. Miss Clara Keating divided with Miss Olga Prentiss in the position of first favourite with the audience, while others, Beatrice McDonald, the Martin Sisters, Morris Royal, Percy Lodge, and Bartlett, the singers

Particulars will be found on another page of the advertising displays to take place at Prince Alfred Park for fortnight commencing 27th inst. For this eight manninging lites are competed, as well as a full-sized aeroplane, an aeroplane, and a war balloon, 600 ft in height.

THE SHACKLETON PICTURES.

What was probably the most interesting series of moving pictures ever taken was shown at the Town Hall on Saturday night. They were the pictures taken by the Antarctic expedition in the Antarctic. Mr. Speaker is showing them all Wednesday. The Town Hall was full to the roof.

The Shackleton pictures do not show exciting adventures—which happened to the expedition at about the rate of one a day. But, as the lecturer who explained the pictures, said, "it is not so simple as to set up the camera." What the pictures showed was men moving about their ordinary occupations, without any thought, apparently, of the camera, as calmly as any other ordinary Anglo-Saxons, among ice and snow and mountains and animals which there is not the slightest possibility of any of the audience, nor indeed of more than a couple of score of men in the world, ever seeing in their lives.

There has probably never before been a biography luna which was taken to an impossible land, a secret undiscovered place on the other side of a great barrier which only a few people on the earth could reach. It brought back and developed so that people sitting by thousands in chairs in a town hall can actually see what is happening in the daily life of that land beyond the veil. That is the ideal scientific use of the biograph. That has been the aim of the biograph since it was first shown. There has been no interest in the films if they showed anything exaggerated or unreal or untrue. The most dangerous incident photographed appears in the

The picture of Shackleton camping the second day to the south on an expedition from which the odds where he and three others would never return—from which it is well known they very nearly did not return—simply shows a tent being put up flapping in a breeze, a small fire burning, a man cooking at a patent stove, and some distant mountains almost hidden by a mist of driven snow. All through these pictures everybody seems to do his work cheerfully, readily, with the give and take of good sportsmen. One comes away quite certain of one thing, that if the boys had not reached the Yukon, they would have been killed by the Indians, the mean wretching who had already taken all

The most interesting pictures of all are those of the penguins—especially the big Emperor penguins. They walk with a heavy roll, something between that of a soldier and a sailor, and who must put his hands in his pockets to hold his bawzy trousers up. In some pictures when they come rolling up from the distance it is hard to say whether they are men or penguins. All these pictures are full of tenderness for animals. The birds are so tame and so gentle that they can be beaten, not just on the back of the neck, but with a stick.

reated the animals like human beings whilst they lived, and killed them as humanely as possible when they had to. On another film, a French one, which is shown after the Shackleton pictures are ended, is shown what appears to be the Parisian idea of the treatment of animals. Another animal is trapped in a first, and then poked with a pole and teased with a huge steel tiger trap half breaking its leg all the time. And finally the French hero comes along with a gun and shoots it in safety, and carries it off in triumph. It may be the Parisian idea of manhood.

COMMONWEALTH PATENTS.

Messrs. Griffith and Hamel, patent attorneys, of 165 King-street, Sydney, and 9 Queen-street, Melbourne, report that the following applications for patents have been lodged at the Commonwealth Patents Office by New South Wales applicants:—

1. J. Roberts. "Combination copper boiler cover, dish drainer, and dishwasher." Filed October 1, 1934.
 2. C. J. Pollard. "Tumblebumb." Filed October 1, 1934.
 3. W. Nance. "A self-contained power generator." Filed October 1, 1934.
 4. Gladstone. "Nicotine intercepting tobacco pipe." Filed October 1, 1934.

LORD KITCHENER'S VISIT

PROGRAMME NOT KNOWN.
WHAT THE IMPERIAL STAFF MEANS.

The programme for Lord Kitchener's visit has not yet been decided. Major-General Hogg, Chief of Staff of the Australian Army, who is Colonel Legge's Quartermaster-General, returned from Melbourne on Saturday, stating definite news has not yet been received of date when Lord Kitchener arrives, or how long he will stay. As soon as the particulars are known, the arrangements for his visit will doubt be made as quickly as possible. It is General Hoad was until recently Inspector-General of the Australian Army. In May he was appointed to two offices—Chief of the General Staff of the Australian Army, and head of Commonwealth section of the Imperial General Staff. These are two separate offices, need not necessarily be held by one man. Meanwhile the office of Inspector-General of Australian Army, which was formerly General Hooad's position, is vacant. The duty of the inspector-general is to look into the conditions and results of the training and equipment of the forces in the various States, and to report on them. It is this section of Colonel Bridges is in England as the representative of Australia on the Imperial General staff. He was sent there in the rather loosely defined office of "representative." The real title or duties of his office appear not to have been settled. The people have read a good deal about a "general staff," but they have very little idea what it means. It is important to have a business. It is really only the thinking- and acting department, which exists in every big business. The nearest analogy is perhaps a bank. The bank has its branches, and paying and receiving tellers at the counters doing business. They correspond to the regimental soldiers and regimental officers. But the bank has two other departments in fact, whether they exist in name or not. There are one of its officials whose business is to decide where it shall take up new business, where

It shall lower the bank rate, how it can fight other banks; and there is another class of officials that sees those orders carried out—contrails let for buildings, discipline kept amongst the clerks, and so on. Formerly, the thinking and planning department, corresponds to the general staff. The latter, the department which sees that all the orders and contracts for supplies are carried out as they were ordered, is the administration department. Into these departments the Imperial Army has also been divided into two. The thinking and planning department is known to the Empire as the Imperial General Staff. The thinking department for the Australian section of the Empire is the Australian General Staff.

the details affecting that State to be roughly gone into. That is now being done. When finished, it will be sent back to the General Staff at headquarters.

The work of going into the various details of such plans as these was first given to a single officer in the State, appointed temporarily.

Colonel Irving did the work in New South Wales. Then a committee was appointed in each district to take the single officer's place.

How long a permanent appointment will be of one officer in each State to do such work. He will be the chief of the staff in that State.

There is another big military scheme which is to be tackled in the near future is that the Australian Military College. The Government has placed £5000 on the Estimates this, and when the Estimates are passed appointments will probably be made. It is possible that some home may be bought for the college—preferably in the country.

BOYCOTTED RACE MEETING.
UNION PHOTOGRAPHS VISITORS.
AMBULANCE REFUSES TO PASS GATE.
BROKEN HILL, Saturday.

the South Broken Hill Jockey Club held its regular race meeting this afternoon, and the effort was effective, in that it kept away a number of the general public, but the mine managers and the mine officials attended in force, and there was also a good sprinkling of business people. Many racing men, however, failed to put in an appearance. The union pickets were in strength over the large area of territory, and the crowd was small.

...the large body of police in evidence had nothing special to do.

demstration was a failure, though the attendance meant a loss to the club. The principle at stake, however, was upheld, and races were held. Unfortunately, although acceptances were good, the fields were small, and the horses winning were mostly on-favourites. In the first race, the Al Stakes, Lival, the favourite, threw his key, C. Wilks, and the public ambulance to be telegraphed for. The ambulance despite all these troubles, the club persevered, and had a pleasant, if not a profitable, evening. All the members of the committee attended.

and officials were present, including Mr. F. Holdsworth, the secretary—the pivot of boycott.

FIRE ON THE SURREY.

---

MELBOURNE, Sunday.

It was not until 5 o'clock yesterday after-that the fire on the steamer Surrey at Williamstown was practically extinguished, the meantime water to a depth of about had been pumped into the burning hold, which was practically flooded. During the raising one of the plugs in the bulkhead was blown out by the pressure of water, and operations had to be suspended until it could be adjusted. This delay enabled the fire to burn in a firmer hold for some time. Subsequently the situation was such a so-

On this aspect that a message was sent to Melbourne for the services of a fire engine, which came down early in the afternoon. As soon as the dislodged plug was replaced the work of pumping in the water was resumed with renewed vigour, two fire engines and one salvage pump, as well as the pumps of the tug, being employed. The tug was pumping water into the burning vessel at the rate of about 600 gallons an hour, and the fire engines and the salvage pump contributed additional 20,000 gallons, or 65,000 gallons per hour in all. Before the arrival of the fire hose from Melbourne, and whilst the task of restoring the blown-out plug was being completed, small tongues of flame were issuing through the hatchways, and fears were entertained that the fire-fighters were about to be faced with a big struggle for mastery. Luckily these apprehensions were not fulfilled, and at about 4 p.m., or three hours after the outbreak, the fire had become extinguished.

val of the city are engine, it occurred that the outbreak was fairly under control. An hour later the fire was so well in hand that the firemen were able to announce that all danger was at an end.

A large quantity of wool and tinned meat, which was stored in the hold adjoining that which took fire, was damaged by heat and water, the bales of wool being saturated. A considerable number of the bales were disarranged from the vessel, and stacked on the deck.

... during the afternoon, and these, together with about 3000 cases of lined meat, will be received by Captain Wymark, of the Undersea Association, and Mr. Alex. McCowan, a representative.

... lying at an exceptionally acute angle the prey presented a novel appearance to-day.

... had heeled over so much owing to the weight of water in her hold, that it seemed as if the pier against which she rested alone prevented her from capsizing.
